MAGONE NOT COMMUNICATIVE.

s There Coolness Between Him and Our Miscal Democratic Leaders ?

A morning daily announces that Police Justice Maurice J. Power and Fire Commissioner Richard Croker have stopped visiting the Custom-House, that they are tired of calling upon Collector Magone in the interest of office-seeking constituents and campfollowers.

Collector Magone was seen to day by an Collector Magone was seen to-day by an Evening World reporter, and the article was shown him. The Collector wiped his eye-glasses and read the article carefully. He smiled as he wheeled his chair around and faced the reporter.

"It is none of my business. Why don't you see Mr. Croker and Mr. Purroy?"

Neither Croker nor Purroy could be found this afternoon. Several politicians who were talked with on the subject said that the leaders of the two Democratic machines did not have any influence with Collector Magone and that they had to depend on the smartness of their followers to pass through the civil-service examination, rather than political influence, in capturing places in the Custom-House.

"Once in a while," remarked a Wigwamite, "we sneak a man in. The Deputy Collectors are pretty good fellows, but old Magone is a rather tough old sinner. He chases politicians out of his office.

"Oroker has only called on him twice, I hear he once told Maurice J. Power to 'clear out,' and Maurice cleared."

SHERIDAN'S DEATH.

Our Nation Mourns the Loss of "Little Phil."

His Brave Fight for Life Ended Last Night.

Heart Failure Finally Carries Away the Great General.

President Cleveland Sends Message of Condolence.

Gen. Schofield Likely to Succeed Gen. Sheridan.

Arrangements for an Unostentatious Funeral in Washington-

Nonquitt, Mass., Aug. 6.—Death claimed Little Phil " for his own at 10,20 last night. An hour before the General was apparently as well as he has been at any time since his arrival here just four weeks ago to-day.

At the dying bedside were Mrs. Sheridan, Col. Mike Sheridan and his wife, Sisters Maban, Mercy and Justinian, the General's body servant, Klein, and Drs. O'Reilly and

Shortly after 9.30 the physicians noticed symptoms of a recurrence of heart failure. Col. Sheridan had bade his brother goodnight and gone to his hotel, from whence he was immediately summoned to the cottage by

The General soon sank into a state of coma and his death was painless.

WHERE GEN. SHERIDAN DIED. The physicians applied all the remedies which proved successful in previous similar attacks, but without effect.

The official bulletin which was posted in the hotel stated that the immediate cause of Gen. Sheridan's death was heart failure, while the remote cause was disease of mitral and aortic valves the existence of which was known to his physician, to himself and to his family in November of last year.

He was restless yesterday, but not more than he has been several times since his arrival at Nonquitt.

The first symptoms of heart failure an peared at 9.30, and he sank rapidly, dying without pain at 10.20.

The General had made his will and all preparations for death and was ready to face t, though resolutely determined that life hould not be given up without a severe struggle on his part. He leaves a widow, the daughter of Gen. Rucker, and four small children—three girls and one boy.

Only two persons outside of the General's family have been admitted to the sick-room here. They were Mrs. Kellogg, the wife of one of Gen. Sheridan's aides-de-camp, and Mr. O. F. Berend, who lives in the adjoining cottage. ottage.

The work of embalming the General's body was begun at an early hour this morning.

Gen. Sheridan has repeatedly expressed a strong dislike of display in funerals, and in accordance with his wishes and those of Mrs. Sheridan, the ceremonies in Washington are to be made as almple as possible. The funeral, however, will of course be a military one.

The interment will be made at the grounds of the Soldiers' Home in Washington, if the assurance can be readily obtained that his wife and children may be given a resting place beside him. Messages of cor

Messages of condolence to Mrs. Sheridan are arriving at Nonquitt this morning from all parts of the country.

Mrs. Sheridan bears up with great self-control, but is terribly grief stricken, the shock having been intensified by reason of the cheering reports and apparently cheerful outlook of the last few days.

It is learned to-day that although the symptoms of the renewed heart failure began some pose.

Deep sorrow fills the hearts of the community. A thick mist covers the bay, enveloping Nonquitt in a dismal fog that seems in keeping with the gloom of Sheridan's pall.

The bells in many of the great cities or the country tolled forth at midnight the sad tidings, while the people here at the village continued to enjoy their slumbers, wholly oblivious of the final struggle through which their near neighbor was passing.

Few indeed were the cottagers here who were sware of the General's death, and only to those who were up and about at the hotel at a late hour was the painful news made known.

At the hotel the majority of the guests had retired for the night. The few gentlemen who had remained about for a late tote-à-tête or good night smoker were surprised and shocked when the startling news was imparted through the final bulletin of Dr. O'Reilly.

From all the information at hand this this morning it appears that the General passed a very peaceful night, and without the slightest apparent pain. All the information vouchsafed by Col. Mike Sheridan, Dr. O'Reilly and old Klein, the General's body servant, went to substantiate this fact, which in itself must afford some gratification to the many millions who have watched the General's sufferings with affectionate solicitude during his long illness.

The Evening World reporter reached the little village at an early hour during the forenoon. The few guests visible on the hotel verandas by their quiet reserve and subdued conversations, appeared glum and sad.

Col. Sheridan came over early in the morn.

But it was in the hearts of the veterans, the men who had followed the lead of the gallant commander to victory on many a bloody field, that the most poignant griefle felt, and wherever there is a breast on which appears a G. A. R. badge there is under that badge a sorrowing heart to-day.

The death of Gen. Sheridan and the story of his achievements, so graphically described in The World this morning, has been almost the sole topic of conversation with veterans to-day.

Two Very Suspicious Deaths on Board of a Havana Bark in Port.

Dr. Connery, of the Brooklyn Board of Health, made some startling discoveries yesterday on the bark Maria Louisa, in transit twenty-four days out from Havana, which arrived at Brooklyn last Thursday.

On Friday the authorities were notified of the death of Venito Parez, a passenger on the vessel, and the certificate of death being incomplete, a post-mortem examination was nade which disclosed the fact that death en-made which disclosed the fact that death ensued from gastritis.

The death of Miguel Ramoo was reported last night, and Dr. Conway, upon making a further examination, found the ship to be reeking with filth, and gave orders for a thorough fumigation.

Meanwhile the body was placed on ice and the Health Commissioner notified Coroner Lindsley to remove the body ty the Morgue, where a post mortem will be made this afternoon.

Reports from Havana show a number of deaths from yellow fever recently, and the authorities think it possible that this fell dis-ease caused the sailor's death.

The four hundred and odd conductors, drivers and stablemen of the Brooklyn cross town surface road who went on strike yesterday morning because ten of their number, as they claim, were unjustly discharged, are still out.

The officers of the company are very reticent in regard to the situation, although they claim that they intend to fight the matter out to the bitter end, and the men on strike are just as determined on their part. There was no repetition to-day of the riotous demonstrations of yesterday, and the nen who were arrested yesterday were arraigned in Judge Nacher's court this morning and discharged, there being no evidence

"This tie-up is the result of a preconcerted plan by Gen. Slocum, who is the owner of the road, to force all the union men out of the employ of the company and fill their places with non-union men.

"As he has political aspirations he wanted this done in such a way that his hand should not be seen in the matter or his name mentioned.

"Supt. Sullivan, who is his tool, agreed to bear all the odium of carrying out this pian and to shield the name of his employer.

"The fight was to be forced to an issue while Gen. Slocum was in Europe, so that he could claim that he had no hand in the matter, and enable him to say when he came back that if he had been here everything would have been smoothed over. We know that this is so and are prepared to prove it.

"It is all nonsense for them to claim that they did not anticipate any trouble and that the men had no cause for complaint.

"Supt. Sullivan has been discharging men indiscriminately on trumped-up trivial charges for the past two or three months, and he was notified long ago that there would be trouble if he did not change his action towards the men.

"Why, we've been on the verge of a tisup for months, and it is only because the men do not like to go out—they have been burned before, you know—that the rupture did not come sconer.

"The men are willing to go back to work any time on a fair settlement. They do not ask that any one be discharged, but only that one or two perhaps be re nestated.

"I think the company will come to terms I afore long, when they see how hard it will be to fill our places, and I would be willing to predict that the road will be running tomorrow."

James F. Dowing, an inspector for the company, is charged by the strikers with being at the bottom of the trouble. He was formerly a member of the Executive Board of District Assembly 228, but was expelled for treason. He obtained his present position through the efforts of the Knights of Labor in District Assembly 226, and they now say he was only hired by Sullivan for the purpose of manipulating that organization.
